Contents

Klopčič Vukšinič A., Štern P. & Strgulc Krajšek S.: Myosotis arvensis and M. ramosissima differ in pollen size 1

Notov A.A. & Zhukova L.A.: Modular organisms as objects of population biology 9

Verloove F. & Bischoff W.: First record of a naturalized population of Glyceria canadensis (Poaceae), another potentially invasive New World grass species, in Switzerland 28

Konishchuk V.V., Solomakha I.V., Dvirna T.S., Chornobrov O.Yu., Churilov A.M., Melnyk O.M. & Solomakha V.A.: Jovibarba globifera (L.) J. Parn. (Crassulaceae) in Ukraine: Population status and ecological-coenotic description 35

Paušič I., Ivajnšič D., Pipenbaher N. & Bešter M.: Intraspecific morphological variability in the genus Ophrys (Orchidaceae) is driven by changing environments 47

Shamrov I.I.: Structural differentiation of the ovule and seed and its importance for reproduction in angiosperms 61

Khapugin A.A. & Chugunov G.G.: Habitat preferences of orchids in the Republic of Mordovia (European Russia): insights from (un)published floristic data 94

Padure I.-M., Šimić S. & Rottensteiner W.K.: Investigations of Melissa L. (Lamiaceae) from Istria: SEM and morphological characteristics 103

Naugolnykh S.V.: Piterophyton gen. nov., a new genus of archaic land plants from the Upper Ordovician deposits of the European part of Russia 115

Kučera P.: Natural acid Norway spruce woodlands in Slovakia and their syntaxonomical classification along with selected problems of syntaxonomical delimitation of the order Piceetalia abietis in Europe 131